BOY IS SHOT BY HIS CHUM

Vermont Lad Calls Playmate From Schoolroom to His Death.

South Poutney, Vt., March 16.—Hayden Morris, aged nine years, was called from school today by his 11 year old friend, William Morris, who is no relation, and was shot down and killed. After investigation the police said the shooting was accidental and took no action against William.

The sound of the shot startled the other children from their lessons. William was so overcome by his deed that he tried to shoot himself but was restrained by the prompt action of the teacher, Miss Anna P. Dunne.

The police believe that William was accompanied by Hayden's brother Richard called at the school to show his rifle and that while pointing it playfully the weapon was discharged. The bullet passed through Hayden's neck.

Whole Plan of Railway Dissolution Now Depends Upon the Report of Gregory and Adkins

Washington, March 16.—After several months of negotiating the crisis in the affairs of the New Haven railroad system so far as it may be affected by the department of justice, probably will be reached during the present week.

The New Haven virtually has agreed in every demand for the disposition of its subsidiary properties made by the department and the success or failure of the whole plan now depends largely upon the report of T. W. Gregory and Jesse Adkins assistants to Attorney General McReynolds. In charge of the New Haven case, who are now in New England seeking first hand information about men proposed by New Haven officials to take over the system's trolley holdings in Rhode Island and Connecticut.

It became more than ever apparent today that an agreement between the railroad and the department can keep the case out of the courts. Senator Weeks called at the White House and spreading in plain language about the financial effect of delay urged President Wilson to interfere to bring about a quick settlement.

Later it was made known that the President would not interfere.

The New Haven has consented to give up its steamship lines and has consented to trusteeship for the Boston and Maine railroad and its trolley holdings in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut.

It became known today that the railroad officials at the last conference at the department agreed that if the department would select trustees to take over the Rhode Island and Connecticut trolley properties from a list of names submitted by the New Haven, the system would give up these lines and make no demands as to the length of their trustees service.

Messrs. Gregory and Adkins then left for New England and are expected to return to Washington with their report in time to participate in the next scheduled conference here Friday. If they advise acceptance of trustees here from the list submitted, it is probable that all other difficulties will be swept aside and that the attorney general will be able to announce a complete agreement as soon as a few other details are disposed of.

It is known here that Attorney General McReynolds has considered the Connecticut trolley phase of the case as one of the almost difficulty. The New Haven until the last argued strongly against parting with them on the ground that they were merely feeders to the New Haven and for all practical purposes are continuations of the steam system into the interior of the state.

The only other point that has proved difficult has been the question of the length of the Boston and Maine trusteeship. The department has demanded not more than two years, the road has asked for not less than two and a half. It was understood tonight that a compromise of the time for this trusteeship with provision for an extension by the proper court is likely to follow a clearing up of the trolley phase.

With these two points out of the way an agreement will be near. It is known that the ratification of an agreement by the department and Chairman Elliott of the New Haven must be followed by its sanction in some United States court by approval of the New Haven stockholders, and by legislative action by the state of Massachusetts to provide clear title for purchasers of the Boston and Maine.

DELIVERS FINE LECTURE

Chief Boatswain William L. Hill, U. S. N. commanding the receiving ship Southard and Topeka at the navy yard, delivered a very interesting lecture on Monday evening before a large audience at the Methodist church, under the auspices of the Good Will Chapter of Methodist Brotherhood. The speaker took for his subject "Reminiscences of the Old Navy."

Mr. Hill who served under Admiral Schley on the U. S. S. Brooklyn, during the engagement with the Spanish fleet off Santiago, is one of the best informed men of his rank on the history of the navy and his talk on the general character and important events of this branch of Uncle Sam's service up to the present day, was a treat to the assemblage.

CAPTAIN W. L. HILL

Following the lecture, the committee in charge served light refreshments. The officers of the Brotherhood are president, J. T. Davis; secretary, Leslie Corbin; treasurer, J. H. Grover.

P.A.C. SCORE ANOTHER BIG MINSTREL SUCCESS

A Good Even Performance, With Excellent Music, Good Songs, Fine Jokes, Clever End Men and Splendid Olio.

When the curtain went up on Monday evening at the Portsmouth Athletic Club minstrels, the Portsmouth theatre was filled with a representative and critical audience. The Portsmouth Athletic Club has on many occasions catered to the musical loving public of this city and in each instance has always scored a success.

The company has been diligently at work for some weeks past, under the able direction of Manager Fred E. Hasty and as the result another success, with a big 8, was added to the Club's laurels last evening.

Promptly at 8.15 o'clock Mustard Director Horace L. Howe took his place and the curtain went up on the P. A. C. minstrel of 1914. All of the company was in black face, the ends and chorists continued in colors, making a very pretty stage effect. An orchestra of twelve pieces under the leadership of Clarence H. Hoyt, was included in the setting, and furnished excellent music throughout the evening.

The overture opened with a musical number, "The Sunny South," having a very fine orchestration and a potpourri of the old colored melodies which were beautifully rendered by the soloists, double quartet and a chorus of forty voices.

Ernest Cook and Ernest Billmeyer were the soloists and both were heard to excellent advantage. Eddie Cooney executed a character dance in a fine manner and George H. Wingate rendered the character song "Old Black Joe" in a manner that won merited applause from the large audience.

"Center man" P. W. Hartford announced the coming of the ends, Eddie Cooney and Leon Ashe and they both got a fine hand. "Tink" Ashe was right there in his glory and his costume alone was a laugh. Both these lively ends had a good line of jokes and all of the local hits were laugh getters. Eddie Cooney made his first appearance as an end man and he made good. Leon Ashe is always a favorite and has lost none of his cleverness. He has the make-up and the business of a typical minstrel end.

"For Love Alone" was sung by John Mitchell and his sweet tenor voice was never heard to a better advantage. The arrangement for the double quartet was excellent, in fact this may be said of all of the ballad arrangements.

Leon Ashe in "Your Mother Has Gone Away in Join the Army" was one of the hits of the show. He sang it well and his funny little dance made him give three encores. He was remembered by his friends with two bouquets.

Mr. Ira A. Nowick sang with fine effect, "When the Bell in the Light-house Rings Ding Dong." It is a selection particularly adapted to his fine bass voice and he has seldom been heard when in better voice.

Eddie Cooney's offering was "I Want a Ragtime Bangalow" was well sung and he does a clever dance.

The second edition opened with the arrival of Arthur Horton and Charles Dondoro, Messrs. Cooney and Ashe rollicking. They got busy at once and they kept the center man busy, with local hits, which was one of the pleasing features of the evening.

One of the song hits of the evening was "When the Stars Kiss the Day Good Night" sung by Arthur Hartford. The song was written by P. E. Hasty and Alex. Billmeyer, and it is a very pretty thing. The words are especially clever and the melody fine. Mr. Hartford sang it well and it was very effective with the double male quartet, and the orchestration was beautiful.

Arthur Horton's song was "You Can't Get Away From It" and it was well done.

"I'm Going Back to Chattanooga" was very finely sung by Ernest Billmeyer and it had a swing to it that was very effective with the double quartet arrangement.

Charles Dondoro made a great hit with "Oh, What a Beautiful Dream" which gave him an opportunity to work in several verses of local hits which brought down the house. Charles was kept busy for some few minutes and he did a fine stunt.

The grand finale "Hunting Song"

LOOKS BAD FOR LEAGUE

Concord Wants the Sunset League Reorganized and New Clubs Put in the Field.

Concord sports are growing somewhat anxious over the Sunset league which made the capital city famous. This city which claims the honor of originating the idea can see a lack of interest, and the coming season has a dubious aspect. There is a fear that the management cannot revive the sport for 1914, and it is believed that the only thing that can bring it back is a thorough reorganization and new teams put in the field.

This is the day of the "Wearing of the Green."

All over the civilized world where-ever Irishmen and sons of Irishmen meet, St. Patrick's Day will be in for observance. Portsmouth shares in the festivities and this evening the members of Division 2, A. O. H., and the Ladies Auxiliary will after the meeting of the former enjoy a social for which a very pleasing program has been arranged.

In Boston the Irish Charitable Society and many other other organizations will hold similar events. New York will be without its customary parade this year, the interest in the parade and having waned since the disastrous fire at the Windsor Hotel on Fifth avenue, a number of years ago, which broke out on the great Irish holiday and resulted in the death of many persons who were intent upon watching the procession.

All in and about Portsmouth the emblems of the day, sprigs of shamrock and other novelties are to be seen.

VENGEANCE IS MOTIVE

M. Calmette, 'Noted' Writer,
Is Killed in His Office
by Woman.

Paris, March 16.—Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro was shot today by Mme Henriette Calmette, wife of Joseph Calmette, the French minister of finance. He died tonight.

Mme Calmette went to the office of the Figaro to carry out an act of vengeance against M. Calmette who had been waging a campaign characterized by great bitterness by the minister of finance. She fired at least three times, Mr. Calmette being wounded in the chest, in the side and the abdomen.

While the editor was being transported to the hospital, he said repeatedly:

"I have done my duty. I have done my duty."

Having committed the deed, Mme. Calmette submitted to arrest and while employees in the Figaro office were taking the pistol from her she said:

"Since there is no justice in this country, I take upon myself an act of justice. Take me where you will."

Mme. Calmette was immediately removed to a police station, where she underwent a preliminary examination the substance of which was communicated to the press at her desire.

"I am sorry," she said for what I was obliged to do. I had no intention of killing M. Calmette, and I would be happy to know that he will recover. I desired only to teach him a lesson."

At the moment of the attack M. Calmette was leaving his office in the company of Paul Bourgois, the author. He excused himself to receive Mme. Calmette, who fired almost immediately.

In her statement to the police, Mme. Calmette explained that the campaign against her husband had become intolerable and she determined to stop it. She consulted an eminent lawyer, who advised her that legal proceedings would be futile—that they were often worse in the case of the innocent than in the case of the guilty. She decided then to take the law into her own hands.

M. Calmette was most polite and asked what he could do for her.

"It is needless for me to pretend that I am making a friendly call," answered, said Mme. Calmette in her statement. Then, losing all control of herself at the thought of the humiliations inflicted on my husband by this man I drew my revolver from my muff and fired all the cartridges. M. Calmette was surprised at the first report and tried to take shelter behind a desk.

Mme. Calmette was formally charged with homicide and removed to St. Lazare prison.

It was officially announced tonight that M. Calmette had tendered his resignation from the ministry of finance, and that Premier Doumergue, withheld his decision until tomorrow.

Mme. Calmette is the minister's third wife. She is 33 years of age and her maiden name was Henriette Rainouard. She was the wife of Leon Claretie, brother of the late Jules Claretie, from whom she was divorced.

The personal campaign of Gaston Calmette against Joseph Calmette began on January 12 and since then the attacks against the finance minister have been a daily feature of the paper. The fact that the campaign was inaugurated on the eve of the opening of the last session of the present chamber of deputies created intense interest in the charges.

Among these M. Calmette asserted that M. Calmette offered to pay $1,200,000 to M. Schneider, the legal representative of the Mercier-Picou, a French financier of Brazil who had entered claim against the government on condition that eighty per cent of that amount should be turned over to the radical party's campaign fund for the coming elections.

M. Calmette also charged that M. Calmette had tapped the Comptoir National d'Escompte and other banks to the amount of $50,000.

Among the other accusations it was charged that the minister had exerted pressure on the judges to postpone the trial of Henri Rochette, who was arrested on the charge of swindling on an enormous scale, thus enabling him to flee to Mexico.

M. Calmette also was charged with authorizing the quotation on the bourse of questionable foreign issues, whereby vast sums were lost by the French investors.

SCHOONER GOES ASHORE ON CAPE

Terranova, Aground in Fog,
May Be Total Wreck.

Highland Light, Mass., March 16.—The Boston fishing schooner Terranova ran ashore tonight on Cape Cod, near Point Pigeon. She pounded heavily and it was feared she might prove a total wreck.

The Terranova was bound in from the Georges, heavily laden with fish for Boston. She had about 15 men aboard. Captain Collins and the coast guard of the Point Pigeon station set out in their surfboat tonight to assist the fishermen in working the pumps or to bring them ashore, if necessary.

A heavy fog enshrouded the coast when the schooner struck and observation was almost impossible. The wind blew from the east, gaining in force as the night went on, but not assuming high velocity. The seas were moderate, and it was thought the crew was not in great danger.

The revenue cutter Gresham was sent for. Captain Hickey and 22 men of the Terranova's crew were brought ashore just before midnight by the Point Pigeon life savers. They reported that their vessel had a hole astern through which the water was entering freely. Captain Hickey said he thought there was no chance to save the Terranova had 100,000 fish aboard.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Out
Your Kidneys and Neutralize
Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing burning, stinging sensation or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist, and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days this will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and made from the acids of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is a splendid for the kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

MEETS WITH OPPOSITION

Several Senators Would Refuse Gallinger the Honor.

In spite of some of the political enemies of Senator Gallinger the new hospital will be called the Gallinger Hospital.

It has developed that Senator Jacob Gallinger of New Hampshire has ten personal enemies in the senate who are not willing to let him have the honor of having his name attached to the new municipal hospital, the appropriation for which is carried in the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

Five of the senators who voted against allowing his name to be used were Democrats, four were Progressive Republicans and one was a Progressive.

The Democrats were Senators Reed, Missouri; Shafroth, Colorado; Shepard, Texas; Thomas, Colorado; and Vardaman, Mississippi.

The Republicans are Taft, Wisconsin; Borah, Idaho; Norris, Nebraska and Clapp of Minnesota. The Progressive is Polk, Washington.

Senators Reed and Clapp did not vote an account of being paired, but stated that they would vote against the senator from New Hampshire if they were at liberty to do so.

The objection to permitting Senator Gallinger's name to be applied to the hospital came from Senator Thomas, who claimed that he was opposed to setting the precedent of appropriating money "to build monuments for senators."

It was explained to him by Senator John Walter Smith, chairman of the district committee that the appropriation was for a hospital that was badly needed, and that the naming it after Senator Gallinger was an afterthought. Nevertheless Senator Thomas persisted in his opposition and demanded a roll call, on which he was overwhelmingly defeated. It will be called the Gallinger Hospital.

MEXICAN REBELS LOOTING CHURCHES AND KILLING PRIESTS

New Orleans, March 16.—Five priests have been slain by rebels in the Mexican state of Tamaulipas since Nov. 16 last, three are held for ransom, a convent has been burned and a cathedral and a smaller church looted, according to two Catholic priests, Fr. Jose Moreno Medina and Fr. Raymond Gonzales, who arrived here today from Victoria, Mexico.

"Three weeks ago soldiers under Col. Cavallera demanded money," said Fr. Medina. "We gave them what we had but it was not enough. Becoming angered, they took away the gold and silver utensils and wrecked the inside of the building. The figure of the Saviour was smashed to bits and other statues broken and trampled under foot."

"The Archbishop, Jose Guzman, and his aged aunt were thrown into the street by the marauders," continued Fr. Medina.

"Fr. Guzman died two days later, and just before we left we heard his aunt was dying. The rebels then went to the American convent, drove out the sisters and her charges, and set the building on fire."

At Tampico, a church was looted by rebels in the same manner as at Victoria, said Fr. Medina, and the record of Fr. Opa Delcon and his two assistants, Basilio and Louise Romanes, were kidnapped.

He said they were taken into the hills, where they are being held for a ransom of $100,000 each, their parishioners having been notified that unless the ransoms are paid the priests will be put to death. Fr. Medina said five priests have been killed by rebels since they entered Tamaulipas last November.

Victoria, Tamaulipas, formerly had a population of 17,863 and Tula 6128. Tamaulipas is the most easterly Mexican state on the border of Texas.

VILLA DENIES REPORT

El Paso, Tex., March 16.—Verification of rumors that the Mexican Federal army had met the rebels near Torreon and fighting had occurred was eagerly awaited here today. Gen. Villa, commander of the rebel forces, in a statement from his headquarters at Chihuahua, said there was no truth in the rumor that the Federals had advanced northwest from Torreon to meet him.

At the same time it was announced at Juarez, across the border from here, that a censorship had been inaugurated over the telephone lines between Chihuahua and Juarez.

FEDERAL TROOPS BLOWN UP

New York, March 16.—The New York Evening World prints today the following United Press dispatch:

Chihuahua, Mex., March 16.—Gen. Villa's headquarters today confirmed reports that a Mexican Federal troop train had been blown up by Constitutionalists at Zavala, 180 miles northwest of Torreon, today, although no figures are given in the dispatches as to the killed wounded and captured. Gen. Eusebio Aguilar Benavides commanded the rebels according to the advices from Escalon.

They say that Benavides Saturday night drove a Federal attacking party in retreat from Personal to Hermosillo, but in doing so ran into an overwhelmingly superior force. The reinforced Federals compelled Benavides to retreat to Conchos, where he is entrenched for Escalon, still retreating.

During the night, sliding, he had not been followed, Benavides mined a long section of the Mexican Central Railroad track, running through a narrow pass just south of Zavala, and connected the mines with electric batteries posted over a hill, where the operators would not be discovered. A section of track sufficiently long to hold half a dozen trains was mined.

Benavides dispatched a train to the southwest, to a point just north of Conchos, when he discovered four Federal troop trains leaving Personal. He retreated to Escalon, and as he passed Zavala notified the battery of men of the coming of the Federals. The men manipulating the keys evidently became excited, and when one of the troop trains got upon the mined section of the track, touched a button, wrecking the train completely, but stopping the other three and giving them time to retreat.

Gen. Benavides had a number of men secreted in the surrounding hills, and they attacked the survivors of the train, but the number of killed and wounded is not stated. Benavides contents himself with the statement that the Federal loss was heavy, while he lost none.

PORCELAIN HOUSE NEXT

New Material Will Take the Place of Concrete, Inventor Hopes.

Until comparatively recent times houses were built either of wood or brick. Stucco was introduced a few years ago and on the heels of that came concrete, reinforced concrete, hollow tile and concrete blocks.

As a scheme that has had the attention of a man for many years materializes, and he says it will, houses built of porcelain will be the next step in the suburbs of New York. This man is in the porcelain business and is of a family of porcelain makers and has had such a building in mind for 40 years.

After years of experimenting he succeeded in making a porcelain tile strong enough for building purposes and soon will erect a house of porcelain. The tile will be built around the skeleton frame of a skyscraper. In other words, the house will have a skeleton frame of steel and the tile will be nothing more than a finish. The tile will be an inch thick and of strength not expected of such brittle material as porcelain.

It is a composition which has taken years to find and the maker proposes to guard his secret. Besides strength and remarkable wearing qualities the porcelain house will be waterproof and steam proof.

Except for the steel frame it will be porcelain. The walls, floors, ceilings, halls, stairs and everything else found in a well-constructed dwelling will be porcelain.

In such a house germs could not live. There will be no corners nor angles, for there to hurt in. It would be possible to wash down such a house with a hose every day if necessary.—New York Sun.

FIDDLING AWAY WHILE "ROME IS BURNING"

Washington, March 16.—"They are fiddling away while Rome is burning," said Senator Weeks, Republican, of Massachusetts, today, after a conference with President Wilson, in which he declared that the New Haven railroad, conference with the Department of Justice, was waiting time and that executive influence was required to bring them together promptly.

It was understood that the senator suggested to the President that he call in Attorney General McKendree, Governor Walsh of Massachusetts, Chairman Howard Elliott of the New Haven and T. W. Gregory, special counsel for the department to bring about an agreement.

The President had a conference arranged with the attorney general today and it was not supposed that he would determine upon his course until then. Senator Weeks pointed out what he believed to be a serious aspect of the situation.

"The New Haven," he said, "must raise about $100,000,000 in the next four months to meet maturing obligations, and under present conditions it cannot. There is one man who can bring all the various elements together."

The fiddling away while Rome is burning, a job that has been sought by the committee for $300,000 and while it is not central it is situated in a rapidly growing section of the city. The money for the building and endowment of a stock company is confidently expected to come in fast, now that the scheme has been definitely launched.

It has been decided to make the theatre less a Shakespeare house than a general repertory house. All the Elizabethans and the classics are to be played there as well as moderns whom commercial managers turn away for reasons alien to art. The new plan has removed many objections and brought support from friends of the repertory theatre. It is designed for many purposes instead of one, and it has the plan of the theatre Francaise as precedent and example.

A few years ago only, a widely romantic person dared to propose a repertory theatre for London and one experiment, actually failed. But Granville Barker has revived the idea and achieved a measure of success. Dublin and Manchester have established repertory theatres, and Chicago is trying to establish one. Perhaps by 1918 London may be raised to the artistic rank of the provinces and provide patronage for a worthy classical modern repertory business.—Chicago Record-Herald.

IF CONSTIPATED OR BILIOUS "CASCARETS"

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They Work While You Sleep

Get a ten cent box. Take a Cascaret tonight to cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, or are bilious, nervous, upset, bothered with a sick, gassy stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you brooding your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Remember a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A ten cent box from your druggist means healthy happy sleep; a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

He is the President of the United States.

Senator Weeks indicated that he had not discussed the merits of the demands of the New Haven and the Department of Justice, but emphasized the necessity for prompt action. He did not agree with the demand of the department with reference to the time to be given to the New Haven for disposal of its holdings in the Boston and Maine.

He said that in the period were fixed at three years the court should have the power to extend that time if, in the opinion of the trustees, it is deemed advisable. The senator contended that you need say in order to obtain a better price on the sale, and that railroads which knew that the New Haven had to sell within a certain time would offer a low price for the property.

The attorney general's view is that the property should be disposed of within the next two and a half or three years, before the close of the present Administration, because he thinks the responsibility for the dissolution of the New Haven should not be left to any future Administration.

GALE AND HIGH TIDE DAMAGE PARIS

Paris, March 16.—A terrible gale and the highest tide of the year wrought great havoc last night along the coasts of Normandy and Brittany. In the Bay of St. Michel, in the southwestern part of Normandy, no such tide had been experienced in 40 years.

Waves of almost unprecedented height dashed against the ramparts of Mont St. Michel, a rocky little island in the bay in which is situated the famous old Benedictine Abbey. The gardens and fields in Avranches, Geneset and other towns on the coast were flooded. Three hundred feet of the sea wall at Granville were swept away.

The damage at Dieppe was very great. A large portion of the promenade was wrecked and harbor improvements under construction were destroyed. Houses were washed in by the sea in such quantities that the River Seine was dammed at its mouth and the valley of the river was flooded for several miles.

In the region of Dieppe, 16 miles north of Dieppe, the sea penetrated at many places half a mile inland, inundating houses, from which the inhabitants made hasty escapes. At many places portions of the cliffs gave way, leaving houses built on the edges in danger of crashing down.

Politics and Business.

Complaint is frequently heard to the effect that there is too great an admixture of business and politics and at first thought it seems to be well based, but just where the responsibility lies and where a remedy is to be found is a question not easily answered.

It is true that politics and business are mixed today as never before. To a certain extent this is advantageous; the two should work together in harmony, and always for the public good, but when selfishness enters in, as is too apt to be the case with business in politics, the public good is lost to view and the people are placed on the defensive and obliged to act to the best of their ability through their representatives. Through this necessity there has grown up a habit of legislating with reference to business which has become almost as pernicious as the practice of business in trying to get some advantage through politics, with the result that every law making body in the land is busy a considerable part of the time trying to protect the public against the machinations of "big business," and endeavoring to guard business, big and little, against the mistaken and hasty action of well-meaning, but over-zealous legislators.

That, under present conditions, business is entitled to some consideration at the hands of the law makers is beyond question, and that law-making bodies should jealously guard the interests of the public is also true. That they endeavor to do this faithfully is to be assumed, but their efforts result in some legislation which the states and the country would do better off without. In this field, as in others, there is too much legislation.

Overdoing things is one of the worst faults of this country today. Business oversteps itself in trying to secure undue advantages through legislation, and in too many instances the result is overheated legislation in attempts to hold it in check. The consequence is a continuous turmoil that is injurious alike to business and to government.

It would be well if there could be less of this, but just how and where the reform is to begin it is impossible to say. Business shows no inclination to withdraw from politics, and the tendency of government to keep its finger in business seems to be growing. Time may remedy the evil to some extent, and it looks now as if it was the only remedy. Unfortunately, it looks also as if it would be a long time before the desired relief is experienced.

Secretary Bryan is in favor of allowing voters away from home to vote by mail. He says they do this in New Zealand. But they do lots of things in New Zealand that are not done in this country. Among other things they dispose of murder cases before they are worn threadbare by repeated trials, and have, for this or some other reason, far fewer homicides in proportion to population than we have in this country.

In an address in an eastern city the speaker advocated planting fruit trees in the public parks. One of the advantages would be the opportunity afforded to train boys to be honest and to leave the fruit till the proper time for harvesting, when all the people would share alike. It would be a great opportunity, provided the trees were permitted by Young America to reach maturity.

English railroad men do not like the idea of the Great Eastern railway coming to this country for a superintendent, as it recently did when it selected the head of the Long Island railroad. But they should avoid excitement and hard feelings. Every little while an American church goes over to dear old "Lunnon" for a pastor. It is all in the line of reciprocity.

A New England man who undertook to carry his wife through Lent on a diet of fresh herrings, bread and water, has been fined $20. The proper expenditure of that sum would have provided a menu that would have kept him out of court, but some men cannot take a hint till they receive a kick. And the kick in this case was none too hard.

In Pittsfield, Mass., there recently died a farmhand who was a college graduate and could speak seven languages. But that doesn't prove that he could manage successfully a balky horse or a kicking cow. There are lots of things to be learned on a farm that are not taught in the college—even the agricultural colleges.

Another English aviation officer has been killed by a drop with his machine. It will be a long time before the armies of the world completely "conquer the air."

Cardinal Gibbons is against national prohibition, declaring it would make the people a nation of hypocrites. And we all know that anything tending in that direction should be vigorously guarded against.

In this latitude the first green of spring always appears on March 17.

The reported engagement of Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, youngest daughter of President and Mrs. Wilson, to William Gibbs M'Adoo, secretary of the United States treasury, caused much comment the country over, and offered word from the White House was awaited with keen interest. Miss Wilson is twenty-four years old and Mr. M'Adoo is fifty. He is a widower with six children. He is also a grandfather. This picture of Miss Wilson was snapped recently in Washington. The picture of Mr. M'Adoo is one of the most characteristic of him.

NEW HAVEN WILL BOW TO GOVERNMENT

The New Haven directors have approved the steps taken here by Mr. Elliott and their counsel and their O. K. on a final agreement is it believed would carry sufficient weight with the stockholders to insure acceptance.

To carry the agreement to the stockholders probably would consume a month. To secure the legislation in Massachusetts might take a longer time, but with the stockholders, the railroad's lawyers and the federal government in accord it is the hope of officials here that Massachusetts officials will quickly fall in line.

With Messrs. Gregory and Adams in New England the untangling marked time here today, although Chairman Elliott remained in Washington and Senator Weeks after his talk with President Wilson issued a statement discussing the situation.

Attorney General McReynolds later visited the White House and incidentally took up the New Haven case with the President.

In this connection it became known tonight that department officials do not feel that they have been dilatory in attempting to reach a settlement.

THE SUNSHINE CLUB.

- Business men who are inclined to look on the bright side of things are forming Sunshine Clubs in various parts of the country.
- The purpose of these organizations is to preach good times and to restore confidence in spots where there has been hesitation.
- Reports show that those who are going after business in an aggressive manner are getting it.
- They are finding plenty of encouragement.
- Sales are getting better.
- Evidence of the way in which the active men are going after good times will be found in the advertising columns of live newspapers like The Herald.
- Each advertisement is, in its way, a bulletin of the Sunshine Club—the bid for business by a man who believes it is here for the asking.
- Advertising these days in unusually profitable reading, not only because it shows the trend of the times, but because it very frequently offers opportunities to the purchaser, that are out of the ordinary.
- This newspaper has an important service to render to its readers in bringing to them the news which its advertising tells.

It is known that after the last meeting of the New Haven board in New York and the receipt here of a letter setting forth the board's views and demands, Attorney General McReynolds became impatient over the fact that Chairman Elliott and counsel for the road did not appear to continue the negotiations.

It was said that when they did reach Washington they were informed that the department expected them to remain here until the matter was settled and that repeated consultations with the directors would not be expected in the future.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA

The policy adopted by Gordon and Lord's Scollay Square Olympia, whereby patrons are given the longest, biggest and best show in Boston, has met with general favor. Aside from this particularly attractive feature, the quality of the entertainment, which consists of vaudeville, feature photoplays and organ recitals, is one of the highest; and will please even the most critical amusement seeker. The popularity of this magnificent playhouse which is located in Scollay Square, only a few steps from Tremont street, is the greatest enjoyed by any vaudeville theatre in this country. The Olympia is the only theatre in New England installed with a great Moller Pipe Organ, costing approximately $50,000. Many of Boston's music loving people have visited this theatre, in many instances for the sole purpose of listening to this wonderful instrument. The organ is operated by Richard Henry Warren, an organist of international fame, who has firmly established himself in the hearts of Bostonians by his astonishing versatility. The doors of the Olympia are thrown open at nine in the morning and the performance runs continuously until 10.30 o'clock at night. On Friday a big bargain day is held, when the regular bill is augmented by several other acts and interesting photo productions. Fine prices are as usual, 10, 15 and 25 cents. The Sunday-night concert is another bright feature starting at 7 and concluding at 10.30 without a single repeat.

THAW LAWYERS BEGIN ON BRIEF

Former Governor Stone Arrives in Concord—Client Makes Statement.

Ex-Governor William A. Stone of Pennsylvania, dean of the Thaw counsel, has arrived in Concord and is engaged on the final brief that will be presented to Federal Judge Aldrich, asking that the fugitive from Mat-ta-wan be granted the writ of habeas corpus. This writ is due a week from tomorrow.

Governor Stone in a statement today stated that he had nothing to do with the resolution which was introduced in the New York assembly by Assemblyman Golden and is to be acted upon Thursday. He said that he was not surprised that the people protested against this uncalled for expenditure of public money. He remarked that William Travers Jerome's prosecution of Thaw has a persistency that displays an inexcusable ferocity.

Thaw, in a statement to the people of New York, relates the history of his case. He says that in all of the proceedings since the indictment was found against him, he has taken no action except what is guaranteed to every American citizen under our fundamental law. He says in part:

"I have endured two trials, defending myself against the charge of murder in the first degree in 1907 and 1908, having been indicted in 1906; have had hearings on three writs of habeas corpus in 1908, 1909 and 1912, being now in prison nearly eight years.

"In defending myself at the two jury trials I availed myself of the right which is given to every citizen under the protection of our federal and state constitutions, which was to have a fair trial by a jury of my peers and to be judged by them. The first jury disagreed, and the second found me not guilty. Previous to this verdict, and during my first trial in 1907, after great provocation had been proven, District Attorney Jerome stopped the trial, stated to the court that he was prosecuting an insane man, had a commission appointed by the supreme court, which commission unanimously found me sane. The trial then continued to a disagreement, followed by my second trial a year later to an acquittal.

"Consequently, I stood my ground; twice by my own volition placed my life in jeopardy; and in the end have undergone greater expense, longer punishment and severer persecution than had I not refused the pretense of insanity which Mr. Jerome himself tried to force upon me during my first trial.

"After the rendition of the verdict of not guilty I was committed to Matta-wan state hospital. In suing out the three writs of habeas corpus I again availed myself of the privilege which is the right of every American citizen under our constitutions. Therefore I draw to the attention of the people of the state of New York that in all proceedings since the indictment was found against me, I have taken no action except that which is guaranteed to me and to every other American citizen under our fundamental law.

"For this I have been persecuted even to an attempt last year to have curtailed by legislation the constitutional right of the writ of habeas corpus, a right dear to every citizen, and have never yet raised my voice in this manner, have never appealed to the people, who in the end are the highest of all earthly law, but have fought fairly with all the means at my command. But now that I am further incensed and humiliated, I make this appeal to the sovereign people of your state."

CURRENT OPINION

Standard of Civilization Will Have to Change in Order to Avert Race Extinction.

The time has gone by when we can any longer say that race degeneracy is simply a bugaboo created by pessimists and alarmists.

The simple fact is, a tide of degeneracy is rolling in upon us. And the time has come to recognize that unless drastic measures are taken the whole standard of civilization will have to change in order to avert race extinction.

The late Professor Wallace, the great English scientist, recently affirmed that our progress is only seeming and not real. He tells us that man has improved his telescope and spectacles, but that he is losing his eyesight; that man is improving his looms, but stiffening his fingers; improving his automobile and his locomotive, but losing his legs; improving his foods, but losing his digestion. He adds that the modern white slave traffic, orphan asylums and tenement house life in factory towns make a black page in the history of the twentieth century.

From every side come warnings to the American people. Our medical journals are filled with danger signals. New books and magazines fresh from the press tell us plainly that our people are fronting a social crisis.

Modern life is very complex. Its details are indefinite, and men break down because of the pace. Our climate is exciting, being dry, full of ozone that stimulates the nerves and heart. The undeveloped resources of our country make a powerful appeal to ambition and lead to overwork. Unable to keep up, the young men stimulate.—Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of Brooklyn.

an hour listened with eager ears to speeches in favor of the amendment by Senators Clarence W. Hobbs of Worcester, chairman of the Committee on Constitutional Amendments; John H. Mack of North Adams, James H. Brennan of Boston and others. The landslide toward suffrage in the Massachusetts Senate last Tuesday went beyond the expectations of its most ardent supporters. Legislature after legislature is recognizing that the proper way to dispose of this question is to put it up to the voters.

Will Rhode Island start a new cycle in securing presidential suffrage from the legislature this year? That is the burning question which is agitating Rhode Island from Woonsocket to Newport and hope in a successful outcome in behalf of this measure runs high. The newspapers devote much space to the question and are unanimous in demanding a fair hearing before the Senate and House for the bill. An amusing incident enlivened the recent hearing on Woman Suffrage before the United States Judiciary committee now sitting in Washington. A representative of an anti-suffrage league from New York explained the absence of bad effects in the enfranchised states on the ground that Woman Suffrage had not existed long enough to bring forth its disastrous results. He was reminded that Wyoming had had it for nearly half a century, and was asked how long he

DEMAND WRIT OF MANDAMUS

Mayor Barry of Nashua Refuses to Pay "New" Patrolmen.

A hearing was held in Nashua today before Judge John Kivel on the request of the Nashua "new" policemen to have the writ of mandamus issued to compel the city of Nashua to pay them their back pay which had been held up since they joined the force September 1, last.

Judge Kivel decided in favor of the policemen some time ago the matter being taken to the supreme court on exceptions by Mayor W. H. Barry. The exceptions were overruled last week by the supreme court, but the men have been unable to get their pay and Mayor Barry said tonight that he would not pay the men at present.

The hearing will be attended by Chairman J. A. Gregg of the police commission and R. F. Proctor, Dr. W. E. Reed being ill in Boston. There will also be the counsel for the policemen, Robert Jackson, of Concord and Albert Terrian of Nashua, and it is probable that Mayor Barry will attend.

At the judge orders the writ of mandamus to issue the men are likely to get their pay this week or contingent of court proceedings are threatened.

RAILROAD NOTES

Captain Daniel R. Newhall, railway mail transfer agent at the Concord passenger station, has forwarded his resignation to the department and has been granted a leave of absence until such time as it is accepted and his successor appointed. He has filled the position for twenty years.

Railroads last week bought $500, cars, 102 locomotives and about 22,000 tons of rails, the latter in lots ranging from 1000 to 5000 tons. Since January 1 railroads have ordered less than 25,000 cars, 366 locomotives and somewhat less than 500,000 tons of rails. At present rate the current year should show about the same record in equipment orders as last year, although 1913 was below the average.

The Southern Railway has increased its car order of 2100 cars, announced last week, to 3376. Of the additional number, the American Car and Foundry Company will build 150, besides the 1000 announced previously, while the railway company will build the remainder in its own shops.

A circular issued from the office of the general superintendent of the Boston and Maine warns all trainmen from stepping in on the tracks to arrange the knuckles of draw-bars while cars and locomotives are in motion. Several injuries have occurred from such carelessness of train hands and the new rule will, it is observed, prevent injury and save expense to the company.

NEW RAILROAD BRIDGE.

B. & M. Contemplate New Structure Across Merrimack River Within Few Years

It is very probable that when the Boston and Maine Company is in a better financial condition that preliminary steps will be taken to erect a new railroad bridge across the Merrimack river to replace the old structure. A high official of the company told a Newburyport resident not long ago that the piers of the bridge were being watched carefully and that there would come a time within the next few years when a bridge would have to be built. It is also said that the company contemplates changing the route of the tracks from just across the bridge to the Salisbury depot. By doing this the curve will be done away with and the embankment so leveled as to do away with the up-grade which by some railroad employees is said to be the hardest part of the road to traverse between Portland and Boston.

As matters stand now it will be some time before even preliminary plans are made regarding the construction of a new bridge at some future date.

MR. FLURRY IN A HURRY

By EMILY F. SMITH.

In this life there is always something we have time for. However important the issue of our present occupation, there are possibilities which may light upon us and engross us until they take wings and fly away.

Mr. N. A. Flurry has never been still long enough for any possibilities to light on him. He is one of those distressingly busy men that remind you of a Waterbury watch; they wind and wind and when they get wound, they run and run and next they do it all over again.

Mr. Flurry has not accomplished very much, because he has always been in such a hurry that he hadn't time.

One morning at the first ring of the alarm clock, set for six, Mr. Flurry fell out of bed, plunged into his clothes, snatched his breakfast, and having a half hour to kill, he awakened the baby and tried to dress it. He let it fall, and as the infant had been badly spoiled by its mother, it began to cry, so he gave it to Mrs. Flurry, and worried the dog, until he saw his car coming. As usual, it was not the right car. He would have torn to the office, anyway, had not Mrs. Flurry happened to think of something at the last minute, as she always did. Involving him into a kiss, she held onto his collar and said:

"Dear, I know how awfully in a hurry you are, and I just hate to ask you—"

"Drop it! Stop it!" snapped Mr. Flurry, grabbing his hat. "I'm not going past the grocery at all. I don't expect to make a speech with the butcher, baker or candlestick maker, this side of Christmas. Jerusalem! Do you take me for a patent, self-adjusting automobile messenger service? Am I your idea of a working model of perpetual motion? Br-r-r!" and he lunged toward the door.

"But, love," and Mrs. Flurry clung to the lapel of his coat, not at all shriveling in the heat of his glare, "it is only a small matter; it will take just a minute. The gas jet in the hall wasn't quite turned off last night and gas is escaping."

"Turn it off yourself," snarled Mr. Flurry. "Do you take me for a janitor or a charwoman? Do I look like a chambermaid or a policeman? I am a business man, madam, working with the force of a hydrostatic press to supply you with food and finery, and here you hang on like a wood tick."

He flung her off and dashed out, only to fall over a rustic chair. Mr. Flurry swung the chair on high, banged it against the side of the house, and pitched it over the back fence. During that psychological moment, Mr. Flurry felt something crawling across the back of his hand.

It was nothing but a wasp, a little creature that God created for reasons of his own.

Mr. Flurry had seen hundreds of wasps before, and as a class he cared nothing for them. He is not afraid of them. Indeed, he has been heard to say that he would not hesitate to walk into a swarm of them if he wanted to.

The wasp crawled slowly up to his elbow, browsed around and crawled back. It did not walk very heavy; still Mr. Flurry could hear and feel its steps clear back to his teething time.

Mrs. Flurry came to the kitchen door. She saw him kneeling, with one hand in the grass and the other rigid in the air, an expression of prayerful contemplation on his chastened countenance, and she felt more kindly toward him and happier than she had been since the day before she was married. She went to him and kissed him.

"My ownest," she murmured, "I beg you not to be sorry about the naughty things you have said to me. I know you didn't mean them. You are my own dear. Why don't you get up? Are you going to kneel there and not speak and just get purple in the face until I forgive you? You needn't. I have already forgiven you, and I'm glad it all happened, because we understand each other better, now. What is the matter with your arm? Is it paralyzed? Let me see. What is that wasp doing up your sleeve? Why don't you shake it out?"

"Shaking before taking is the natural order," he answered, in a low tone. "The wasp is already there; it has arrived; and I want it to feel free to leave without mutual unpleasantness."

While he was making himself out a modern Sidertha, in a kind of monotone that wouldn't offend the wasp, Mrs. Flurry got it by the head and dropped it in the rain barrel.

Which is Truly Scientific. "I thought you said Tompkins was an omnivorous reader?"

"So I did."

"Pshaw! Why, he hasn't even read 'David Copperfield.'"

"I forgot to tell you that he confines his reading to a single subject."

"Some branch of science?"

"Vex haeball."

SHEA TO BE APPOINTED DEPUTY COLLECTOR

It is generally accepted as a fact that Representative John P. Shea of ward 5, Manchester, who was an ardent supporter of Henry F. Hollis for U. S. senator, is slated to receive the appointment of deputy collector of internal revenue, an successor to George L. Stearns of Manchester, and that he will receive his appointment within a few days and be sworn in so as to assume the duties of his office by April 1.

This report receives corroboratory evidence in the circumstance that Fred Whittemore of Brattleboro, Vt., has been selected by Seth W. Jones of Franklin as the Democratic successor to the Republican collector for that section of the district located within the state of Vermont. Mr. Whittemore will begin his duties April 1, and will remove from Brattleboro to Burlington inasmuch as the headquarters of the Vermont end of the district are located in Portland. Mr. Whittemore is well known in Manchester where his business as a commercial traveler has often taken him. He formerly resided in Nashua, and has always been actively identified with the Democratic party.

FIRST LUXURY

For Colonial Women Was the Mirror.

Looking Glasses of 18th Century Now in Demand.

Almost every owner of a modern Colonial home, be it in the city, suburbs or country, is on a hunt for an old mirror with which to embellish its walls, for these not only give perspective and distinction to the room, but impel the fancy to conjure up a vision of the smiling faces in quaint poke bonnets and the grave ones in queer masculine hats—that once consulted these impartial judges as to whether they were altogether fetching and captivating.

In the times, however, when the dabbles and deaus of yore thus preened themselves the mirrors were most frequently called looking glasses and were, by no means articles of such easy accessibility as we find our newly made ones in this year of grace.

They were not in common use in England until after the Restoration in 1660, and although there were a few of these sent over to the colonies, these of the 17th century are so unobtrusive to be picked up that the wise collector does not set her heart upon them.

It is the Eighteenth Century mirror that everyone is hunting, and these of the 17th century are so unobtrusive. There came over in sufficient numbers to have become familiar to us in the numerous heirlooms preserved in the old homes of the thirteen original colonies, in private and public collections and through illustrations and reproductions.

It was during the Eighteenth Century that our forefathers began to add the luxuries of life to the necessities, and mirrors, very naturally, being among the first luxuries craved by the Colonial dames, were frequently part of a cargo and managed, miraculously, to withstand the voyage over seas in loading sailing vessels.

Those of the Queen Anne and George I period from 1702 to 1757 had that veneered grain of walnut at first, but succeeded by mahogany about 1750. The edges of these frames were cut in graceful curves, the broken arch usually appearing on top. Indeed, this broken arch or "bow's neck" as it is sometimes called, was a top ornament which was characteristic of most of the furniture of that century.

After an authority on this subject, tells us to carefully note the surrounding ornamental many of these old mirrors. On some, he says, the urn ornament used from 1720 to 1740 was shaped like a gobbler, which differed from the Chippendale, Heppelwhite and Adam urns of later date, though in other respects some of the Queen Anne mirrors closely resembled those of the Georgian period.

He reminds us that another Queen Anne urn was quite in shape like a small green, while that of Chippendale was egg-shaped, and that the more classic urn of Heppelwhite and Adam was not seen until after 1755.

On the frames of mirrors dating from 1700 to 1750 there is frequently a bird, usually a pheasant, flying through an opening. The shape of the glass itself is a guide to date, those of that period being curved at the top, while those of the Georgian period were square.

The Chippendale period in mirrors is from 1750 to 1780, many of them showing the Louis Quinze influence. Others had fable subjects in the decoration, especially those of Aescop.

Some of the most eager hunters of antique mirrors seek the oval and oblong ones—those known as granddaughters, which were made in England and America, and which were frequently used as a mirror for the dressing table.

The "Constitution" mirrors are also much hunted. They have flat frames of solid or veneered mahogany, curved at the bottom, and were made from 1750 to 1790. They have gilt ornaments at the sides and a gilt edge of wood or silver in the broken arch at the top. One of similar design appeared from 1810 to 1815. We are warned that many of the mirrors of this type made both in England and America, so closely reproduced the lines of Queen Anne style that hunters of old mirrors often confuse those of 1750 with the 1815 product; but they would not do if noting the fact that the Queen Anne mirror frames were not mahogany.

The granddaughters with candle holders branching from the sides were popular from 1750, and a beautifully preserved one is still in Longfellow's home. Of the mantel mirrors of the 18th century both oval and oblong shapes were much in vogue, those with the convex effect, by Adam and others, being especially fine. Some of us can remember certain old-fashioned rooms frequented in our childhood where one of these beautiful old oblong mirrors graced each of the mantels in the double parlors.

Such homes also treasured, in many cases, an inherited mirror of the three section type, the kind often called colonial mirrors, but which, having columns of pillars dividing the glass date after 1800.

Many old homes have retained their Empire mirrors, that came in about 1805. Some of these are flat and many frames with brass ornaments and brass-capped pillars at the sides. The Empire style is easily distinguished from any other.

Another mirror often erroneously called colonial is one that really belongs to 1825. This, one of the most familiar of old mirrors, has a thick frame of turned wood gilded in balsa or rope pattern, with or without small brass or wooden rosettes in the corners.

In the last quarter of the 19th century, many of the medium and smaller mirrors had historical and patriotic pictures painted on the upper part or, sometimes, pastoral scenes. While we cannot define the why or wherefore of it, since they have not reached the 100-year mark, these mirrors have always impressed many of us as the quintessence of all the survivals; but the endless repetition of them, because of their now constant reproduction, bids fair to lessen their appeal and dim the glory of their associations.

Besides these English and American glasses a few made on the Continent were brought over in early days, notably the Bilboa mirrors made in Italy and sent to Massachusetts from whence they migrated to the other colonies.

When one of these very handsome and eagerly sought old Bilboa mirrors of the 16th century has been from your childhood a familiar object on your walls you may surely be pardoned your natural pride in an antique which is one of the rarest of the mirrors now being hunted. This one has a frame of veined pink marble with pillars of the same material at the sides, and is topped with a flared central urn from which emerges an elaborate floral design of gilded wood. The heavy beveled glass has a beading of gilded wood on the inner edges and the feet are also of this material. —Kansas City Star.

PICTURE STAMP FAD

German Idea Outdoes Post Card Craze in Popularity.

Something new under the sun? Here's really a new craze which has been catching the enthusiasm of all Europe young and old, for the last six months, says the New York Sun. It is the craze of the "picture stamp"—and before many weeks, it promises to sweep across the ocean and invade our ports as well.

It was Germany that discovered and made universally popular the picture postcard, and now that the custom of sending and collecting these is on the wane, it has discovered and popularized a successor. It looks as if it is a very worthy one and likely to rival, if not actually exceed, the popularity of the postcard.

"Reclame Marken" is the German name of this new fad. They resemble postage stamps, though they are usually a little larger. Like them, they come in sheets, are perforated and easily torn apart. They are bright in color, adhesive, of endless variety of subject and purpose.

Thousands and thousands of these picture stamps are everywhere in evidence, scarcely a boy or girl in the great Empire of the Kaiser is without an album, large or small, in which is a growing collection of "marken."

The craze for collecting these (for it has truly assumed the proportions of a craze) has passed up into the elder generation, to the grown-ups, who find pleasure and occupation in collecting the high-class "marken" which are now rapidly appearing on the scene—reproductions of famous masterpieces in color, in monotone or etching, brilliant poster effects and veritable gems of art.

What are "reclame marken" what called them into being and what are they used for?

Less than 18 months ago an important South German manufacturer of chocolates and sweets issued several highly attractive poster show cards advertising his wares. When the popularity of these posters was at its height the firm conceived the idea of having them reproduced in small label form, of the size and character of postage stamps, with gummed backs to be pasted on each letter and postcard they sent out. One of these little pictures was also placed within the wrapper of each penny piece of chocolate.

Before long the children were buying their chocolate sticks for the sake of the souvenir stamp. The idea had caught on and other manufacturers followed the example as quickly as the lithographers could be set to work.

Thousands of presses and many times that number of individuals have found profitable employment in their designing, plate-making, and printing; thousands more in marketing them. Several of the most important art publishers and advertising concerns of the United States have already placed their orders. America is going to follow the example, just as it did in the making and distributing of the picture postcard. And with American energy and ingenuity it will develop and extend the usefulness of the picture stamp to the utmost.

KEEL OF THE NEW BATTLESHIP LAID

New York, March 16.—The laying of the keel of battleship No. 33, which may eventually be named either the North Carolina or the Arizona, at the Navy yard in Brooklyn today, marked the formal beginning of the greatest fighting machine in the United States navy, and the peer of any ever built or projected by any power.

With a displacement of 31,000 tons, she will be slightly larger than the Pennsylvania, and will be the 10th vessel of the superdreadnought class to be begun for the fleet. Like the Pennsylvania she will carry three 14-inch rifles in every turret, mounting 12 of these guns altogether, and will be the second vessel to be so equipped.

Although the keel laying occurred only today, work on the gigantic ribs and plates has been going on for several months, and they are ready to be riveted in place. Number 33 is already about 10 per cent completed.

The superdreadnought New York, which was built at the Brooklyn navy yard, will leave the yard on her trials in about two weeks.

NAMES FOR SIX DESTROYERS

Sen. Daniels Decides to Honor Memory of Porter, Tucker, Conyngham, Wadsworth, Wainwright and Jacob Jones.

Washington, March 16.—The names

Green began on Saturday night between Premier Goremykin and his cabinet ministers and the leaders of the chief parties of the Douma continued until early yesterday morning. The ministers fully explained the international situation to the members of Parliament and the necessity for increased naval and military credits. It is stated that the army will be increased by 100,000 men, making the total of the first line of defense 1,700,000 men. The extra cost, it is estimated, will be $25,000,000 spread over three years.

The premier and his cabinet, ministers and members of the Douma, showed unanimity of sentiment on the part of all the political parties in line with Russia's resolution to keep abreast of the strongest military nations. How the money will be found to accomplish this purpose is still unexplained, but the projects mooted are income and property monopolies to replace the loss caused by the alcohol reform measures.

SPRING, THEN MORE WINTER

Fair, Warm Weather After Today and Until Friday When the Season Will Have a Relapse.

Washington, March 16.—Fair, early spring weather over nearly all parts of the country during the coming week was promised by the Weather Bureau.

"The weather will be unsettled Monday, however," said the weekly bulletin, "along the northern border from the Great Lakes westward and there will be rains the first part of the week in the North Pacific states. The next disturbance of importance will appear on the North Pacific coast Monday night or Tuesday, across the Great Central Valleys Wednesday or Thursday. This disturbance will be attended by local rains and snows, and it will be followed by cold weather over the northern states east of the Rocky Mountains."

of Porter, Tucker, Conyngham, Wadsworth, Jacob Jones and Wainwright, prominent in the annals of American Naval history, have been selected by Sen. Daniels for the six new top speed boat destroyers now building.

In the case of the Porter, both Admiral Porter of Civil war fame, and his father, Capt. David Porter, who served in the early wars of the Republic, will be honored.

The Wainwright was so called in honor of three men, Jonathan Mayhew Wainwright, killed in action in 1802; a son of the same man, killed in an expedition against pirates on the coast of Mexico in 1870, and Richard Wainwright, commander of the flagship Hartford, under Admiral Farragut at the time of his death.

Capt. Samuel Tucker saw distinguished service both during the Revolutionary war, and the War of 1812. Capt. Gustavus Conyngham was a plucky sea fighter of Revolutionary days.

The Wadsworth was named after Lieut. Henry Wadsworth, who lost his life in the war with Tripoli and Lieut. Alexander S. Wadsworth, who served on the Constitution in her famous fight with the Guerriere.

Capt. Jacob Jones, for whom the sixth destroyer is named, was in command of the Wasp when she captured the British sloop of war Frolic.

U S M C, retired, died at his home in Washington, D. C. Sunday, from apoplexy, with which he was stricken Friday night. He was seventy-four years old. General Field served in the Marine Corps for more than forty years, participating in both the Civil and the Spanish-American wars. He was born in Lorain, O., and before entering the Marine Corps was graduated from Oberlin College and the Columbia College of Law. Since his retirement in 1904 he had resided here in Washington. He leaves a wife, who was Miss Ada Savage of Washington.

HUMOROUS SLIPS OF AUTHORS

Some of the Errors Committed by Noted Literary Men.

A popular writer was recently expatiating on the strange errors of family literary men.

Tolstoy, for instance, tells us that Andy Scott "came whistling up the street with a cigar in his mouth." Jules Verne in "Around the World in Eighty Days" would have us believe that his hero arrives triumphantly at his club just as the clock strikes ten minutes to 12. It was a Paris journal that described the discovery of a naked couple in the Seine with trousers in his waistcoat pocket, which is on a par with Defoe's statement that Robinson Crusoe, before addressing to sail to the wreck, took care to fill his pockets with biscuits, while in "Don Quixote" Sancho goes on riding his ass after that animal's death.

In "King Solomon's Mines" Rider Haggard describes the famous eclipse as taking place at new instead of full moon, and Walter Besant in "The Children of Gilead" sets astronomy at defiance and makes the moon rise in the east at 2 a. m., whereas it must have been noted by all that the new moon rises in the west. In this connection the author went on to state that even Wolfe's "Burial of Sir John Moore" is wanting, as an inquisitive astronomer took the trouble to work back and found that "the struggling moonbeam's misty light" was a myth, as there was no moon at all to struggle on the night in question.

Scott in "Ivanhoe" makes a knight of Richard I converse with a contemporary of William the Conqueror, Richard's great-grandfather, and in "The Newcomes" Olive dates a letter 1836 and asks: "Why have we no picture of the sovereign and her august consort from Snee's brush" forgetting that there was no prince consort until 1840.

The anachronisms of Shakespeare were no less amusing. In "King John" cannon boom, although there were no cannon to boom until 150 years later. Printing is referred to in Henry VI. Although there was no printing until the seventh Henry's time. Clocks are spoken of in "Julius Caesar," and he does not hesitate to include a billiard table as part of the furniture of Cleopatra's house.

UMBRELLAS AND CHARACTER

The man who sat nearest the window said he didn't mind the wet weather.

"It gives me a chance to see how people carry their umbrellas," he said. "I have such firm faith in my umbrella deductions that I wouldn't be afraid to choose a wife with them for a guide."

The woman on his left smiled. "I'm glad I'm not out there in the street," she said. "You're picking out all the kinks in my disposition along with the rest of them."

"Oh," said the man. "I sized you up a long time ago. You carry your umbrella when it's fustled, just like that woman across the street. You grab it in the middle and go foraging ahead with the ends of the handle digging into the unfortunate pockets."

friend who go before and follow after."

"And what does that signify, she asked."

"Altruism, activity, selflessness, and unselfishness."

"U-m-m, thank you," said the woman.

"But just look at the third woman in the procession," said the man. "I pity the men folks about their nose. I dare say they have to get their own breakfast about six mornings out of seven. I never yet saw a woman who dragged her umbrella along so that you could touch her by the trail of its lip who was not dilatory and shiftless."

"That other woman who is hustling along, holding to the top of the umbrella handle like grim death and pointing the tip down and forward in a kind of south-by-southeasterly direction is altogether different. She would set the world on fire if it wasn't waterlogged. I am not sure that I'd want to be married to her either. She'd be too energetic. She'd push everything before her, and when she took a notion to clean things up a mere man would have no chance."

JAPANESE VICE ADMIRAL HELD FOR GRAFT

Vice Admiral Asaturao Matsuo, inpector-general of naval construction on the Reserve, was arrested yesterday charged with complicity in alleged graft in naval expenditures. Admiral Matsuo, who is fifty years old, was graduated from the engineering department of Tokyo University in 1885. He served the Government abroad for a number of years and several times has been decorated. On his retirement he went into business for himself.

Decide Yourself

The Opportunity is Here Backed by Portsmouth Testimony.

Don't take our word for it. Don't depend on a stranger's statement. Read the statements of Portsmouth citizens. And decide for yourself. Here is one case of it.

George S. Chandler, 420 Pleasant street, Portsmouth, N. H., says: "I do a great deal of walking in my work and in that way my kidneys became weakened, causing me much suffering. About three years ago I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. They cured me and I have had little trouble since. Sometimes when I overwork or do any heavy lifting, I notice lameness in my back, but on such occasions a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills bring relief. I have recommended this remedy to many of my friends, and in every instance where it has been tried, benefit has followed. Doan's Kidney Pills can be procured at Phillips' Drug Store and should be given a thorough trial by every kidney sufferer."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Chandler had. Foster-McIlburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

BIG INTEREST BEING TAKEN IN SAILORS' LESSONS

Washington, March 16.—Not only are the gilded men of the navy displaying an amazing interest in the educational work recently instituted by Sec. Daniels on board warships, but the officers, also, are applying themselves with great diligence to the task of teaching the men.

This, in substance, is the report of George A. Reeder, shipboard secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association assigned to the Atlantic battleship fleet, made public today by the Navy Department.

Sec. Reeder relates that on the second day at sea all men of the fleet were summoned below decks to listen to the reading of the Department's circular outlining the plan of education and the various lines of study the men could take up. It was both interesting and amusing, he says, to see the expressions of the old sea dogs as they heard the courses outlined and discussed the studies they were going to pursue.

The real spirit of the work, however, he said, began to manifest itself when "School call" sounded on the following day and the men went to their class rooms. Mr. Reeder made it a point to visit every class room, and says it was intensely interesting to see how the officers applied themselves to the new work of instructing the men. Lack of blackboards did not deter the men, for they used the circular gun shield on which to write figures and draw maps.

"It so happened," said Mr. Reeder, "that a night or two after the work began, I stood a midwatch with one of the junior officers, and in coming down the quarters I heard two men talking in subdued but earnest tones. One man said to the other, 'Why, you fool, four times eight is 32. Ain't you never going to learn that?' And it struck me that if the education plan had gripped men sufficiently to keep them at work between 1 and 2 in the morning on simple sums in arithmetic, it was going to prove of real value to the personnel of the fleet."

"My dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, and in February of 1912 I was taken with a severe attack of pneumonia. When I recovered sufficiently to walk about the house I was left with a frightful hacking cough, which no medicine I had taken could alleviate. It was at this time, March, 1912, that I started taking Eskman's Alternative. In a short time my cough was gone and I was pronounced well. I cannot speak too highly for the good it has done."

MAPLE SUGAR LEGENDS

Indians Knew Delights of Vermont's Pride and Had Romantic Stories of its Origin.

Maple sugar is a special product of our new world and when the Pilgrim Fathers landed they found it ready for them.

The Indians had long known the virtues of the beautiful, abounding tree, and believed it to be the special gift of the Great Father to his hungry children. Among the Iroquois there were many legends or rather sacred myths and traditions of the maple tree. According to one pretty myth a spirit came from heaven to teach the Indians to make the sugar from the clear, sweet water. But another version is given in the legend of Moqua, the wise squaw.

One morning the mighty hunter Woksis had his wife cook for his dinner a choice bit of moose meat and have it ready when the tall stick which he stuck in the snowdrift should throw its shadow to a certain point. Moqua was a weak wife so she promised to obey, and well did she know her fate in case of failure. After her lord and master had departed she bowed off the meat with her sharpest stone knife and filling an eastern pot with kash, with snow for melting she hung it over the fire. Then she sat down to her embroidery. It was her pride that Woksis, her lordly husband, should sport the gayest moccasins in the tribe, and many hours did she spend every day in working with bright colored porcupine quills. For no brave in all that country was so warlike as Woksis, no squaw so skillful in embroidery as Moqua.

As she worked on the moccasins hours passed as minutes. She took no note of time so busy was she in her labor of love. Suddenly she heard a startling noise—the bark string that held the kash suspended was turned off, and a quivering scattering explosion followed the overthrow of the pot.

What could she do? There was no water, the melted snow was gone and she must boil the moose meat before her lord's return. It was growing late there was no time to melt more snow, so seizing a birch basket of maple water that was always tapped in the spring for its sweet flavor she tapped the kash and hung it over the moose meat and set a cake of pounded corn to bake on the slab between the fire. Into it she popped the birch bark. Then she resumed her embroidery in which the quills were both needles and thread.

She was working the intent of her gaze, the hearth so different from the wolves, eagles and turtles of other tribes. Dreaming of her husband's future success in hunt and battle, the hours passed by; the shadow crept past the mark; the fire burned low; the once juicy meat was a shriveled morsel in a mixture of gummy lupins. When she saw this the frightened squaw ran into the bushes and hid herself from the rage of her coming lord.

After a long and silent waiting she carefully drew near the camp once more and what did she see? There was Woksis devouring the morsel of moose meat and her wonder was great when he deliberately broke the eastern pot and carefully licked out the last vestige of her spoiled cooking. She forgot her fears and cried out in surprise. When discovering her Woksis said: "O Moqua my wise squaw who taught thee such a marvel of cooking? With great joy he embraced her, and in his sticky kiss she tasted the first maple syrup.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

MISS PATTERSON'S PRINTS

A Pictorial Medium That Might Be Made Much More Common—Its Possibilities—Strong Acquaintance.

At No. 29 Grandin Street, now always rather better known to the public as the Copy Hall Building, Boston, Miss Margaret Patterson is holding an interesting exhibition of her wood block prints in color and her watercolor drawings. Her wood block prints are examples of a process which has great possibilities, and which might be made much more common among our artists to their own advantage. These small landscapes, simple in composition, but extremely interesting in their patterns, are very attractive; possibly they would be still more so if the artist adopted the Japanese convention and printed them entirely in flat planes, without any attempt at perspective. We decide that they are altogether too much tied down to facts in our art, and one of the lessons that we can learn from the Orientals is to dare to make it as unlike as we please. By this device, the route we may attain unto the higher truths.

The experiment is commended to Miss Patterson, whose artistic resources are large. Wonderfully strong and beautiful in color are her watercolors of Spain. Here is a bit from a Biscayan harbor with green water and a red-hulled tramp steamer at anchor, which is a real symphony in street scenes from Spanish towns than which no painter has made better. And here is a landscape among some mountains, no matter where, with a deep blue lake nestling in a foreground valley, that shines like a good deed in a naughty world. In point of fact Miss Patterson is one of the strongest watercolorists in America and a colorist of great force and distinction. Her exhibition will remain open through March, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day, except Saturday, when the hours are from 2 a. m. to noon.

Miss Patterson was formerly instructor of drawing in this city.

PREMIER ASQUITH NOT ENCOURAGED

London, March 16.—I do not feel much encouraged over the reception of my proposals in regard to "Easter," said Premier Asquith today, in the House of Commons. He was replying to requests for further details of the scheme of local option, under whose provisions the nine counties of Ulster will be permitted to vote separately on the question whether they shall be left out of the control of the new Irish Government at Dublin.

Premier Asquith said he fully adhered to his proposals, in the hope they would form a "basis of settlement." He added, "I am anxious in the interests of agreement and peace, that the main principles of our proposals should be considered on their merits, without being encumbered with minute details, likely to draw the discussion into back waters."

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition took exception to the Premier's attitude. He declared it was impossible to debate the proposals without details being given.

Premier Asquith then promised to give the House an opportunity to discuss his refusal of the details before knowing whether the opposition would accept the main principles of the proposals.

A MOVEMENT OR A DISEASE?

The Slogan Let Us Have Wigs; Old-Time Shame of "Wearing" One's Own Hair.

Oppressed by the deadly intent of purpose that once ruled in cosmopolitan New England, Emerson, in profound revolt, cried, "I'll talk to the limit of my deepest, whitest." Such are the penalties of overmuch serious progress. The adherence of nature for a vacuum may be overcome by her protests against a monopoly. She will preserve the balance at all costs, over against engines she places the things. Motivated by the aggressions of reason and under pondering on the ultimate whether, she comes to the rescue with wigs.

Red wigs and green wigs; wigs of white and wigs of blue; gold wigs and pearl-colored wigs; star-spangled banner wigs and wigs composed of butterflies and beetles; wigs for society and wigs for lawyers; wigs for the 400 and wigs for the 4,000,000, let us have wigs!

There is a mysterious fascination in the whole subject. In Hugueneque phrase, it partakes of the attraction of the abyss. Whether came the idea? Was it born of much study and reflection, or did it spring up unheralded and unannounced from the womb of variety? Is it a movement, or a disease? Has it come from some hidden font of accredited inspiration, or is it an emanation, as immanent in its utterances as that strange word which "chilled and killed" even Anselme Lee? Search us!

However, if society, or the times, or morals, or religion or all of these, or the lack of all these, dictate wigs—wigs it is. If wigs for women, though let it be wigs for men also. Strange and capricious as has been the feminine attire, men have dared even more. To his hairdressing may be traced the first umbrella, the original plug hat, the derby, the evening dress. He began the original wig movement of his own accord he abandoned it. In the reign of good Queen Anne, a dandy courier wore his own hair, to the shame of right thinking folks and the amazement of all. Like shaggy, however, others followed. And time came when even the sailors abandoned the tarred pigtail.

There will be those who will oppose the renaissance of the wig. Why, they will ask, should it be worn? To which the significant and crushing answer is, Why not?

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson P. Greene of Old Orchard, Me., parents of Mr. Charles W. Greene of this city, are today, Tuesday, informally observing the 45th anniversary of their marriage at their home at the camp ground.

Mr. and Mrs. Greene were married in the Free Baptist parsonage in North Berwick, Me., by Rev. J. A. Cabana.

Mr. Greene is a shoe repairer and a barber. He says he is happiest when he is at home. He was born in Wells, Me., September 20th, 1846, the son of Wilson J. and Oliver (Larabee) Greene. At the age of 15, he learned shoemaking. After he had worked a year in Wells he enlisted in Co. K, 2nd Maine Regiment. While he was waiting for the ranks of the company to fill he was stricken with measles, and when his regiment was ordered to the front, a doctor forbade him going at that time. His father went with the regiment and he returned to Wells to look after his mother, brothers, and sisters. Within two years both his father and mother were dead, and he was obliged to remain at home to look after the children.

He was librarian of the Free Baptist Sunday school library in North Berwick for some years, and was a member of the William Hill engine company for 20 years.

Mrs. Greene was Miss Mary S. Hanson before her marriage, and was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Hanson of North Berwick. She was a Quaker. Her age is 71.

"Was that picture showing Dustin Farnum in 'Soldiers of Fortune' good?" Ask that question of anybody you happen to meet today. You'll find it hard to find anybody who missed it. So great was the applause at times that it seemed almost necessary to turn the film back and let the actors take a bow. If you are one of those who did not see it last night don't stay at home today. It will be shown at 8 o'clock for the last time. With this are six other pictures, making a three hour show. Then, too, tonight is the time the young people have been planning for. It will be a large social crowd. Tomorrow and Thursday comes "Our Mutual Girl" in another series of adventures. This is proving a very attractive picture. If you have missed the early reels come along and see if you don't enjoy this one.

Women Take a Hand

In an appeal to congress a number of the most prominent women of the nation protest against the proposed expenditure of millions of dollars by the government for the building of new battleships and they declare that this money could be used to a much better advantage in a battle for the prevention of disease and accidents.

These women, claiming to represent thousands of others, point out in their letters to congress that the yearly cost of the National Children's Bureau which is trying to prevent the increase in infant mortality, is less than the annual repairs on two torpedo boat destroyers.

No Prospects for Filling the Place

The place of chief progress man at the yard is still vacant and judging from the present outlook it will not be filled in the near future.

The work of all the soloists will compare most favorably with any work seen here by professionals.
